The Intermountain and Colorado Catholic is placed on sale at the James Clarke church goods house, 647 California street, Denver, Colo.

Parish Notes.

In order that the new cathedral at Colfax and Logan avenues may be equipped with entirely new vestments and altar linen, a tabernacle society will soon be organized, by members of the present altar and rosary society. It will be a small organization, composed of women who do fine needlework, and the meetings will be at the homes of the members. They will enjoy social gatherings while their deft fingers make the vestments which will be required and the linen which will be needed on the altar. The women are enthusiastic over the idea, many of them having ample leisure to devote to the work.

Women interested in the building of St. Ann's founding asylum met last Sunday in Logan Avenue school and arranged for a sort of "tag day" for March 17, the feast of St. Patrick. The members will use little strips of green ribbon in collecting the coins which are expected to net a neat sum for the proposed home. The ground for the institution has been purchased. It is on Franklin street, near Twenty-first avenue, six lots having been secured by St. Vincent's Aid society for the purpose. The idea is to provide a home for infants left to the care of the sisters. Now they are looked after at St. Vincent's orphanage in North Denver, but the sisters are anxious to have them close to St. Joseph's hospital, where medical attendance can be more readily obtained.

Mrs. W. P. H. Keough of Chicago, formerly a member of the board of education in that city, and a platform speaker of reputation, will speak under the auspices of the Colorado Anti-Saloon league during the campaign for a "dry" Denver this spring. Mrs. Keough is expected to use her influence among the Catholic people to secure many of whom she is already known. She has frequently visited in this city.

In competition for the Knights of Columbus gold medal, the women of the Loyola debating society of the College of the Sacred Heart entertained their friends Tuesday evening of this week with a debate on the federal income tax.

The subject was, "Resolved, That a uniform federal income tax should be levied on all incomes exceeding $2,500 per annum, to meet any annual national deficit."

The affirmative was well handled by John J. Cunningham and John J. Kennedy of the class of 1910, and William M. Higgins, 12, while the negative side was sustained by Humphrey V. Danvers and Thomas L. Monahan of 10 and Joseph C. Horan of 11.

The medal is to be given annually by Denver council 83 to encourage the college students in personal research work, original composition and oratorical skill. The Knights select the judges from their number, those this year being David O'Brien, W. T. Crean, John McGowan, Herbert C. Fairall and Charles Mahoney.

The debate was held in Knights of Columbus hall, and a number of friends sufficient to tax the capacity of that place were invited. Stephan P. Collins gave the introductory address for the Knights of Columbus, and then Raymond J. Noone of the class of 1910 made a few remarks. In the debate Cunningham was pitted against Danvers, Kennedy against Higgins, and Higgins against Monahan, the college orchestra interspersing the serious side of the program with music of a high order.

Monday of this week the feast of St. Thomas Aquinas was celebrated at St. Thomas' seminary on Myrtle hill with a theological disputation, which was attended by all the priests of the city.

Arrangements are complete for the annual Irish concert for St. Patrick's church, which will be held this year at the Auditorium on the evening of March 17. It will be of a high artistic order.

The senior division of the Holy Name society of the cathedral, at its meeting on Thursday evening of this week, listened to an interesting and instructive paper on "Does the End Justify the Means?" read by P. Harry Byrne. A lively discussion ensued, showing keen interest on the part of the members.

The monthly envelope collection for the cathedral parish last Sunday amounted to $450, a good showing, but not as good as some months have registered.

The parish social which the cathedral will give at Knights of Columbus hall the second Monday after Easter promises to be well attended. It will be in the new Knights of Columbus hall.

The College of the Sacred Heart registered an emphatic protest with the Denver library commission against the removal of John Parsons, for eighteen years in the reference department of the public library, to the new building, a faculty of that institution not only commended Mr. Parsons for his efficiency, but commended upon his untiring consideration and kindness. Mr. Parsons had been notified that his services would not be required after July 1, but the board is listening to arguments against its action.

On Saturday, March 19, Miss Angela Scherrer, an alumna of Immaculate Conception high school, will be received into the order of Sisters of Charity at Cincinnati. The departure of Miss Scherrer from Denver last week occasioned not a little surprise among her friends. She kept her plans secret until she was ready to retire from a splendid position as teacher of sloyd in the Denver schools, and then quietly left for Texas for a visit with relatives. From there she will go to Cincinnati, where she will be received at St. Joseph's next Saturday, the feast of St. Joseph.

Miss Scherrer was one of the brightest pupils ever graduated from the Immaculate Conception high school. In addition to her mental attainments she was an accomplished vocalist, her voice adding much to the card party to be given at the evening services in Logan Avenue chapel. The prayers of her friends are with her, that the new life may mean peace and happiness to her.

The postponed election of officers of St. Vincent's Orphan's Aid society was held on Tuesday, March 1, at a regular meeting at the home of Mrs. C. J. Dunn, 1827 Grant avenue. The choice of the members present fell upon the following to guide the destinies of the society during the coming year: For president, Mrs. W. P. Ryan; first vice president, Mrs. C. A. Williams; second vice president, Mrs. C. J. Dunn; recording secretary, Mrs. William Faircloth; financial secretary, Mrs. Daniel J. Sayer; treasurer, Mrs. Lawrence M. Purcell; chaplain, Mrs. Susan Hally; auditing committee, Mrs. Elizabeth Wilkin, Mr. Patrick C. Rordan and Mr. Charles J. Dunn.

As the time draws near keener interest is awakened in the card party to be given by the Sacred Heart Aid society at Knights of Columbus hall. The party will be given on the afternoon of St. Patrick's day, and to those who adhere to a strict observance of Lent offers the only social break in the penitential season. But aside from the pressure to be derived from attendance at the party who patronize will have the consciousness of assisting in a very worthy cause and lending financial aid as moral support to the members of the Sacred Heart Aid society in the project for which they have been striving so zealously for years—the foundation of a home for aged and indigent men and women. This home has long been the dream of the society, and that dream now promises to become a reality within a short space of time. That there is need, and urgent need, of such a haven for the old is apparent to those who have served on the relief committee at any time, and who have found the unhappy charges of the society's bounty hiding their poverty in cellars and alleys, in cheerless barns and still more cheerless tents. The work of the Sacred Heart Aid society will be rendered far more effectual when these unfortunates are gathered into a comfortable home and their wants attended to by "The little sisters of the Poor"—that band of noble women walking so closely in the footsteps of Jesus as to cause even the most ungodly to do them reverence. Denver is generous to the fatherless, its orphanages being second to none in the country; whole pages might be written on what St. Vincent's, with its manual training department, is doing for boys, and the excellent domestic knowledge imparted to orphan girls by the good sisters in charge of St. Clara's, but Denver has not yet awakened to the cry of those who are going down the hill and who would seem to be objects of sympathy just as much as the little ones whose tiny feet have just started on the upward climb. The Sacred Heart Aid society was organized nearly twenty years ago, and during that time has faithfully performed the obligation of visiting the poor in all parts of the city and relieving distress in so far as the treasury will permit. It has been to Denver what the St. Vincent de Paul society is to other cities, but all the time the ultimate object has not been lost sight of, and each year a small sum is added to the fund on deposit for the home for the aged. Dues of life members formed the nucleus of this fund, which has now assumed generous proportions. The card party on St. Patrick's day will help to add a little, and all interested in the noble work of the organization are urged to be present, or at least to purchase tickets. Mrs. W. A. Grainger is chairman of the committee on arrangements, and has done excellent work toward the success of the party.

The four local divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will attend the card party at Sacred Heart church on Thursday, March 17. Rev. Edward Barry, S. J., will celebrate high mass and also deliver a sermon on the "Life of St. Patrick." The musical program will be an original feature, with special reference to the feast of the patron of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will parade through the principal business streets, with Frank McNamara as chief of parade. County President Richard Morrissey has charge of the program for the day. In the evening the annual ball will be held at El Jebel temple, which will be gallily decorated in Irish colors and streamers of green bunting. M. D. Healy is chairman of the ball committee.

The new officers of the Good Shepherd Aid association elected at the regular meeting in February were inducted into office Tuesday afternoon, March 8, at a large and enthusiastic meeting held at the home of Mrs. M. C. Harrington, 1427 Seventeenth avenue. Mrs. Harrington is the president of the society, and in the discharge of her arduous duties will be assisted during the coming year by the following well known workers in the cause of charity: Mrs. J. Frank Carey, first vice president; Miss Margaret O'Keefe, second vice president; Mrs. A. H. Flood, third vice president; Mrs. E. M. Hess, financial secretary; Miss Irene Abel, recording secretary; Miss Florence Erhart, treasurer; Mrs. Henry Abel, chaplain; Mrs. E. C. Burton, Mrs. A. F. Ross and Mrs. John F. Van Daniker, auditors. The retiring president, Mrs. M. C. Harrington, and the officers who served with her were given a vote of thanks for the excellent results achieved by them during the year 1909. After the ceremony of installation, Rev. Father Sheehan of Mt. Carmel church addressed the members on the subject of the work of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

The Irish-American Progressive association celebrated the birthday of Robert Emmett on March 4 in a way which will be long remembered by all who were present at the Woman's club decorated with a profusion of Irish flags, side by side with the stars and stripes. The famous trial scene of the great Irish patriot was effectively given and the speech in Irish as recited by John A. Maloney of Pueblo was a masterpiece. Timothy O'Leary took the part of Lord Morbury, and did full justice to it. Besides the play a fine program of Irish music, vocal and instrumental, was participated in by Miss Helen McGovern, Miss Clara Galligan of Pueblo, John E. Connelly and Thomas F. McGovern. A stirring speech was made by John A. Maloney of Pueblo, in which he sought to inculcate a love of Ireland and a desire to see her free in the hearts of the rising generation. William J. Kerr of Pueblo was the orator of the evening. The chairman was Charles J. Dunn, and a delegation from the John Boyle O'Reilly club of Pueblo came up to assist at the exercises, and after the performance were guests of the Irish-American Progressive association at a dinner at the Auditorium hotel.

Obituary.

Mrs. Catherine A. Dolan passed away unexpectedly on Thursday, March 10, at the family home, 1218 West Colfax avenue. Mrs. Dolan was the widow of Michael Dolan, who died a year ago as the result of an accident, and her failing health was caused by continued brooding over her bereavement. However, the tender vigilance of her devoted children saw no occasion for alarm, and her sudden death came as a terrible shock. The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon, March 5, from St. Leo's church, and was under the auspices of Cullen court, Woman's Catholic club, of Platteville, Rev. Father O'Ryan read the service and also spoke touchingly of the virtuous life of the deceased woman, whose husband was a Christian wife, mother, sister and friend. Known and unknown friends, all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance during her long residence in Denver, were in Mount Olivet cemetery. Interment was in Mount Olivet cemetery. Misses Margaret and Ellen Dolan, and two sons, Angelo and Thomas Dolan. Mrs. Maurice Dolan, Mrs. Patrick H. Mullen and Miss Elizabeth O'Connell are sisters of the deceased.

Rosie Bruno, one year old, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bruno of 3234 W. Wadsworth street, died on Wednesday, March 2, and was buried on Saturday in Mount Olivet cemetery. Funeral service was read in Mount Carmel church.

The funeral of Mrs. Nellie Downe, who died last week at her home, 723 Wadsworth street, was held on Thursday, March 3, at 10 o'clock, from the Holy Ghost, Rev. Father Decher officiating. Burial was in Mount Olivet cemetery.

Frank Rydzon, who died on Thursday, March 3, at the county hospital, was buried on Sunday from St. Joseph's Polish Catholic church in Globeville. Rev. Father Jarynski read the funeral service. Interment was in Mount Olivet cemetery beside the young wife who passed away just three weeks before him. Both Frank Rydzon and his wife, Sophie Rydzon, were natives of Poland and had resided in Denver but four years, having come for the benefit of the health of the former, who had fallen a victim to tuberculosis. Mrs. Rydzon nursed her husband faithfully until last Christmas, when she suffered from a hemorrhage, death following in less than two months. Her death was a great affliction, grief and loneliness soon caused a complete collapse, and death relieved the sufferings of the husband last Thursday. He was 29 years of age, and his wife but 23. No relatives are known to live in this country.

News was received in Denver during the week of the death near Tucson, Ariz., of Dr. Pauline E. Purcell, a resident of Denver. Dr. Purcell's automobile fell down a forty-foot embankment, planning him underneath and instantly killing him. A widow and two children survive. His sister, Dr. and Mrs. P. B. Purcell, and a brother, Dr. J. W. Purcell, reside in Denver.

John Cushey of 1236 Race street was buried Tuesday morning with requiem mass from Logan Avenue chapel. Father H. L. McMenamin officiating. Mr. Cushey's death was a distinct loss to the community. It occurred at Santa Fe, while traveling in business through New Mexico he was stricken with pneumonia and was taken to St. Joseph's hospital at Santa Fe. His death came after a short illness. The sympathy of a wide circle of friends is with Mrs. Cushey.

Harry C. Benney, a Knight of Columbus from Philadelphia, died while on his way to the hospital on Monday afternoon. He was seized with a hemorrhage on a downtown corner, and although hurried away for medical treatment, he died before he could be taken to the hospital. He had made his home with Mr. and Mrs. James Donovan of 123 West Fourteenth avenue, and although a resident of Denver only a few months, he had many friends. The funeral was from Logan Avenue chapel.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS

Dublin.—The announcement that there will be no home rule bill presented to the present session of parliament, while not unexpected, has caused regret in Ireland and it is recognized now that it may mean another election before Ireland will have the right to govern itself. While it is true here that the veto of the house of lords would be given preference by the Asquith government even over the budget, the great majority of the Irish people are inclined to stand by Redmond, and his determination not to bring about the defeat of the government on this question. The best opinion here is that a thorough and satisfactory reform of the lords will be proposed, and it will be necessary to go to the people on it before it will become a law and home rule become possible.

The O'Brien split is causing some uneasiness as it is feared it will weaken the Irish position. Mr. O'Brien's letter to a West Cork clergyman, says there can no longer be any doubt that the Irish party contemplate the blackest of treachery, and they would not permit the act of union to be used to assist the government in passing a budget which will impose upon Ireland two million of taxation per annum. It is a question that it adopted this attitude under the direct inspiration of Mr. Dillon. It is wrong, perhaps, to say that the Irish party are responsible for one of the most gratuitous and criminal treacheries in history. The fact is that the Irish party are never consulted on any subject. All they have to do is obey the word of command of Mr. Dillon and Mr. T. P. O'Connor, who arrange everything before the public eye is reached. Irish members are simply informed as to the lobby into which they must walk. The letter proceeds: "Every man of ability and independence was hunted out of the party. It was necessary to exterminate them in the constitution, and where that failed the door of the party was shut in their faces. No man would be allowed to become a member of the party who was not prepared to be the servile tool of Mr. Dillon. No such autocracy was ever established in any country, no such degradation of public life was ever witnessed. No greater insult was ever offered to the Irish people."

Rome.—J. Pierpont Morgan is one of the most popular Americans among the Italians. He is friend of king and is held in high regard at the Vatican as well. This is due to a number of graceful things the great American financier has done for Italy from time to time. It will be remembered, among other things, he promptly restored the famous stolen cope as soon as he found it had been stolen, though he had paid a fortune for it. For this he was created chevalier of the Order of St. Sisto. The title of cousin to the king. The announcement which has just been made that Mr. Morgan has promised to lend his famous collection of masterpieces of Italian art to the exposition to be held here next year, will certainly increase the popularity of the American emperor of finance.

Rome.—The archbishop of Villafrauda had a narrow escape from being poisoned while celebrating mass recently. The circumstances are as follows: The archbishop, not feeling well, asked his vicar to celebrate mass in his stead. The moment the vicar had pronounced the communion cup from his lips he fell back on the altar stairs. Conveyed to the hospital, the doctors discovered that he had swallowed poison. Three vestry keepers were being kept in connection with this attempt to murder the same time it is suspected that the real author of the crime is still at large. The local press hints at a political vengeance.

Berlin.—While it is declared that the Kaiser's recent illness was nothing more than a severe cold which rested in a slight return of the old affection of the ear to which his majesty has been subject since he was a boy, it is hinted that a number of important circles that the trouble is more serious and that there has been a recurrence of the growth in his throat which at one time was thought to be of a cancerous nature. It is said that the Kaiser's physicians were for a while considering the advisability of an operation, but concluded at this time the knife would not be necessary. Report also has it that his majesty is looking worse and has been unusually irritable since the latest attack. These reports are unofficial, but it is generally believed there is some foundation for them. It is a fact that a number of important engagements were canceled, and the Kaiser would hardly have broken these for the simple case of cold which it was officially announced was the trouble.

Copenhagen.—Much interest is felt here in the proposal made in the United States that Commander Peary submit his polar data to the University of Copenhagen so that the University which exposed the inadequacy of Cook's claims to the discovery of the north pole may pass upon those of Peary. The university officials will not discuss the suggestion for publication, but I am able to state that they would be glad to act if asked to do so by Mr. Peary. They, of course, would not suggest that a number of such action. This would be a reflection on the American geographical society for which the Danish scientists have a high regard. It may also be stated that no doubt is felt here that Peary actually reached the ultimate north.

Vienna.—A thousand weddings in one city in one day should come near breaking the hearts of the Viennese. The reports show that there was slightly in excess of this number in Vienna on the Sunday before Lent. The reason for this is that marriages are prohibited during Lent in the Catholic church, and the great number of young couples decided they simply could not wait for forty days for the consummation of their happiness. In one of the poorer quarters of the city, several couples were married simultaneously.

Lisbon.—A priest living in a lonely part of the town of Camunhos has fared ill at the hands of six masked men. These men forced the back door of the house. The servants, a man and two women, were overpowered and gagged. The marauders then began to flick ash with the priest, during which the priest was awakened. When he appeared on the scene he was assailed by the gang, and though he made a plucky resistance he was knocked down with a hammer. He lay for some time, but still living, but not expected to survive. The house had been cleared of all valuables. The total amount stolen is estimated at over $15,000. The perpetrators are suspected to be a band of brigands.

The Hague.—The first meeting of The Hague arbitration tribunal, to which Great Britain and the United States with regard to the Newfoundland fisheries, has been fixed for June 1.

South Bend.—The Laetare medal, the highest decoration of honor for a Roman Catholic church member in the United States, was presented this year to Father E. J. McMahon, pastor of St. Ignace church, South Bend, Ind. The medal is given to the person who, in the opinion of the university, has achieved the greatest eminence in art, literature and science. The names of the recipients are made public on Laetare Sunday.

Berlin.—United States Consul George N. Hitt, Nuremberg, Bavaria, has been boycotted by the storekeepers of the city. Mr. Hitt, who ranks in the highest class of the consular service of the United States, was given the position of United States consul here, his first post in the old world, he having been transferred here from a post in Canada. His home is at Pocatello, Ida., where he is one of the owners of a newspaper there, and who waged a vigorous campaign against the sale of Sunday papers here.

Consul Hitt has always been liked by the people here with whom he transacted business both from the standpoint of business and of personal relations. Three years ago Mr. Hitt was transferred to the consular post at Warsaw, Russia, and remained there for two years, when he was again transferred to Nuremberg, as he was anxious to have his children avail themselves of the schools in the old city.

Some time ago Mr. Hitt made a report to the state department in Washington, in which he declared that the citizens of Nuremberg spend more than half their income on solid and liquid food. When the Nurembergers heard of this they considered themselves highly insulted and decided to take a course of action. Mr. Hitt's trade is under the necessity, therefore, of having his food-stuffs sent from other points and his shopping also is done, of necessity, elsewhere than in Nuremberg.

Washington.—"They thanked me and that was enough," said John O'Neill, a brave young bricklayer, who risked his life to save from possible death a woman and a little girl who were in a wagon behind a runaway horse.

Lying on his hospital cot, suffering from a broken shoulder, cuts about the head and face and badly battered limbs, O'Neill, who asked about the accident after he had regained complete consciousness, seemed to think that a word of thanks had been sufficient reward for his act of heroism.

The young woman and child are unidentified, but the former called up the hospital and inquired as to O'Neill's condition.

Rome.—The pope has accepted the views of the bishops of the province of St. Boniface, Canada, and created a new diocese at Regina, and an apostolic vicar at Keewau. The pontiff has appointed the Very Rev. P. R. Heffron of St. Paul to be bishop of Winona, Minn.

Seattle, Wash.—Max Thurna, convicted of being engaged in the white slave trade, was sentenced to hard labor in the state penitentiary for not less than two and one-half years. Thurna was prosecuted by the United States Immigration service, which introduced as evidence unprintable letters written in Yiddish to a fellow slave-owner, from which it appeared that Thurna had been driven out of Spokane and Great Falls, but had prospered in Seattle. The letters spoke of the buying and Joplin, Mo.—If a horse valued at $1,000 swallows a diamond worth $750, should the horse be killed or operated upon to recover the gem?

This is the question that is bothering Captain E. O. Bartlett here. While he was standing near his saddle horse, King, an animal of which he is especially fond, the horse nipped a four-carat diamond from his shirt front. Then, while Bartlett looked on in dismay, the animal calmly swallowed the gem.

Bartlett has consulted several veterinary surgeons to learn whether it would be safe to operate on the horse. If they think the gem could be recovered and the animal's life saved, an operation probably will be performed.

Graham, Mo.—Bruce Donaldson, aged 5, and Margaret Canker, aged 4, were burned to death by an explosion of gasoline in a smokehouse, where the children were playing. It is thought they set fire to the gasoline with matches.

Spokane, Wash.—The second section of Northern Pacific westbound passenger train No. 7 was ditched just east of Eddy, Mont., 167 miles east of Spokane. Several passengers and trainmen were injured, but none fatally. The baggage car was burned.

Pueblo, Colo.—Santa Fe passenger train No. 563, which left here at 1:30 p. m. for La Junta, was wrecked twenty miles west of here by spreading rails. The train was made up of a baggage car and two coaches, and all of the cars left the track and overturned. Five were injured, none of whom will die.

St. Louis.—A gift of $20,000 from R. C. Kerens, recently appointed ambassador to Austria-Hungary, to Father Dunne's newsboys home was announced this week. The money will be used in buying a farm as a summer home for the boys in whom Mr. Kerens takes great interest.

New York.—Threatened with death unless he pays $4,000 within the next ten days, Joseph Florentine, an East Side Irish desperado, is barricaded in his home in Third avenue, while detectives are searching for the writers of the Black Hand letters which he has received.

Five letters have come for Florentine through the mails. One was dated at Hoboken, another at Newark and the others were mailed from various parts of the city. The earlier letters allowed him thirty days to make up his mind, but the latest, received yesterday, reminded him that inasmuch as the first letters had been ignored, he had only ten days of life left to him.

New York.—America is becoming the most lawless country on the globe, declared the Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church here, in an address on the Philadelphia strike, before the Current Event club of his church Sunday.

"Every striker is potentially a lawbreaker and even a murderer," said the minister. "The evil consequences of strikers' acts are far reaching and the innocent must suffer with the guilty. Strikes are war. There ought to be no strikes in this twentieth century under circumstances which are a reflection on the common sense of both capital and labor."
